Recognising My Mother: A poem of echoing false words

खे'य'र्न्

E ma ho!

Oh lama who nakedly reveals the amazing suchness of profound dependent-arising exactly as it is and whose kindness is boundless, please abide at the centre of my heart as I speak a few spontaneous words that come to mind!

I, this crazy small child who has lost his elderly mother long ago, seem to almost recognise that which I have not recognised: that my kind mother has been with me all along.

Due to the secret explanations of my brother dependent-arising, I wonder how can it be that [things] "are" and "are not". These various subjects and objects are my mother's gentle smile; these transformations of birth and death are her deceptive words.

My non-deceptive mother has deceived me! I place my hopes in my brother dependent-arising to protect me! Ultimately, my hope for liberation is only through the kindness of my elderly mother.

द्यारक्ष्यारक्षेत्रः स्वेतः स्

If subjects and objects were just these, then even the Conquerors of the three times would have no way of protecting me! Since their various transformations are the expressions of my changeless mother, liberation remains a possibility.

हेर-प्यर-अः बुन-सदे-नहेंद्-अेट्-प्रायदे। । हेर-प्यर-नहु-न-पी-सर-नहेंद्-सुर-नहेंद्र। । पदे-वा-ह्या-बेवा-प्य-वेर्-सु-पद्-वा-वेर्ग्।

My inexpressible mother, not established as anything, is disguised as everything in mutual dependence; there is much to be understood regarding just this.

सःसःद्वेतःक्वःश्वेशःतःस्तृतःभ्वा। सःस्वःहेनःस्यात्यःस्वःहेनःस्या। सःस्वःहेनःसार्वःस्वःस्वःहेनःस्या।

Not finding my elderly father when sought after is finding my elderly mother; therefore, my elderly father is found in my mother's lap. In this way, it is said that my kind parents protect me, their son.

My mother's face, neither one nor many, in the mirror of my brother dependent-arising, appears totally existent through the lack of understanding of it; such existence is beyond conception for one like me.

Nāgārjuna and Candrakīrti consigned their last instructions to the winds and Mañjuśrīgarbha sent it via bird; as such, leaving aside the hardships of seeking far and wide, I hope to see my ever-present elderly mother.

द्वायाःकुः दुः ठवः विवाः पट्टियः चनः श्वरः श्वे। । श्वरः चः वोरः वोरः वदे द्वायः श्वरः चववाः वशा । स्वायः विवः चिरः वदे द्वायः श्वरः चववाः वशा । द्वायः स्वरः चेवः वविवः विवः चयाः ।

These days, it appears that some of our scholars grasp at terms such as "self-supporting" and "true establishment"; thereby leaving these vivid appearances as they are and seeking some creature with horns to negate!

श्राम्मद्राक्षः स्थानित्र स्थाने स्थानित्र स्थाने स्थानित्र स्थाने स्थानित्र स्थाने स्थानित्र स्थाने स्थान

It is not to say that these vivid appearances exist on my mother's unobscured face! However, through lengthy discussions that miss the point, I fear my elderly mother will escape!

Although things exist, they do not appear to be such present utter contradictions; my parents' inseparable affinity appears to be a harmonious, gentle, and happy one!

The Vaibhāṣika, Sautrāntika, Vijñaptimātra, and the three Eastern Masters designate my mother with various terms, such as "matter", "apprehender", and "non-dual self-supporting"; like designating the body of a white-grey elephant as a grinning mottled tiger, a brainless crazed monkey, and a ferocious bear! However, they have lost my elderly mother!

यान्त्रियः श्वीयाः विवाद्यः विवादः विवादः

Many Sakya, Nyingma, Karma, and Drukpa realised masters boastfully proclaim various terminologies: the "self-knowing" of clarity, emptiness and non-apprehension; "Samantabhadra's true face" of primordial purity and spontaneity; "Mahāmudrā" of the uncontrived innate [nature]; "Freedom from assertion" of not existence and not non-existence; and so forth. If their fundamental nature was accurate, then they would be great; but I wonder what is it they are pointing at?

Since external objects are not invalidated, there is no need for agitation; the two Proponents of Objects should be pleased! Since valid cognition and the cognised are correct even without self-knowing, all Proponents of Cognition should be pleased! Since dependent-arising is vivid despite not being established by own-character, all three eastern masters should be pleased!

Since appearance and emptiness are not contradictory, that can be upheld; the holders of the disciple-instruction lineage need not have the slightest doubt. Since good and bad are admissible even if primordially pure, the Vidyādhara yogis need not grasp at the pure.

चर्ड्सःत्र्यःचर्ङ्ग्स्यस्यःतःष्यः द्युतः स्रुतः स्याः । हेन्यसः स्वरः स्वरः स्वरः स्वरः स्वरः स्वरः स्वरः स्वरः स्वरः । स्वरः स्वरः स्वरः स्वरः स्वरः स्वरः स्वरः स्वरः स्वरः । हेन्याः स्वरः स्वरः स्वरः स्वरः स्वरः स्वरः स्वरः स्वरः ।

Since the innate [nature] dawns even with contrived meditation, the realised elders need not insist. Since freedom from the elaborations of existence and non-existence can be asserted, the hard-headed logicians should not lose their composure.

र्स्ताः श्वनाः श्वरः द्वः त्वे त्वर्षेतः स्वरः स्वरः स्वरः श्वरः स्वरः । सः स्वरः श्वितः रुवाः त्वः स्वरः स्वरः स्वरः स्वरः । सः स्वरः श्वितः रुवाः त्वां सः स्वरः स्वरः स्वरः । स्वरः श्वरः स्वरः स्वरः सः स्वरः स्वरः स्वरः ।

However, it is possible that it is those with little training in the textual systems that do not know the way of applying this terminology. I mean no disrespect to you; if offended, please forgive me!

Although I have not matured into omniscience, since I am a good rider of my forefathers' textual systems, skilled in riding with constant and earnest application, I hope to be liberated from this difficult passage.

```
क्ट्रियः द्वीं अः से 'य्रुवा श्रे' य्वें यः स्वावतः स्टः धेता ।
यहेतः यस् से 'वेता हे' यहेतः या हेट् 'धेता ।
यह तः यः से 'य्वें वा श्रे' यदेतः यः स्टः धेता ।
कट् 'सेत' ह्वा सेता यः प्राया व्या स्वावतः स्टः धेता ।

There is no need for seeking; it is the seeker itself. Do not conceive it as truth; it is just a falsity. Do not reject the falsity; it is truth itself. Just relax in neither annihilation nor permanence.

Despite not seeing my mother, merely through their names I appear to encounter my long-lost kind parents as if standing right beside them.

Nāgārjuna and his spiritual sons are greatly kind! Losang Drakpa is greatly kind! The kind lama is greatly kind! As a way of repaying their kindness, I will revere my mother!

Through the coming together of the unborn inexpressible elderly mother with her small child of awareness in a great joyous festival of the deeds of Samantabhadra, may my elderly mother lead all migrators to lasting happiness!

अःसःयःद्यःयदेहेहे। अःदःयःसुन्यःतदेन्त्रःम् अःदःयःयदेन्त्रःमह्र्यः अस्यःयःदेन्त्रःमह्र्यः अस्यःयःदेन्त्रः

EH MA LA! I, Rolpé Dorjé! AH OH LA! A merry dance! OH NA LA! I dance right here! AH HO YA! And make offerings to the three jewels!

Recognising My Mother: A poem of echoing false words was expressed by Jangkya Rolpé Dorjé, a devoted Great Madhyamika, in the miraculous supreme abode of the Five Mountain Peaks (Wu Taishan) and scribed by the Gelong Gelek Namkha.
